

A Warm & Friendly Place

As soon as you step inside Wayne Delaware Manor, you are greeted by a feeling of warmth and friendliness.

"I love this place," says a resident of the past six years. She echoes the feelings of others, who all seem very happy to live here.

A diverse group of people, residents include a published author, a talented and enthusiastic photographer and a prize-winning giant pumpkin grower. He now tends the colorful flowers that dot the property. Another long-time resident enjoys growing his tomato plants behind the main building.

Most residents come from nearby communities and have family and friends in the area. Several are from metropolitan areas. They, too, enjoy the serenity the countryside offers.
