INTRODUCING...

THE SECOND CENTURY FUND

THE THEME WAS “A Night at the Oscars,” and Wayne Memorial’s leadership took full advantage of the Hollywood connection. At the hospital Auxiliary’s annual Mistletoe Ball on March 16th, a video that opened with the music of the Academy Awards and the words, the “biggest production ever”—kicked off the hospital’s Second Century Fund. Named in honor of Wayne Memorial’s centennial in 2020, the fund is a drive to raise monies to staff and equip the hospital’s new patient tower for the future. The tower, an 85,000 square foot building housing 50 private patient rooms, was funded separately and will open later this spring.

“Our building project will make us one of the most modern hospitals in the state,” said WMH CEO David Hoff, “with technically advanced, spacious private patient rooms. This will be a facility that our community members deserve and will help Wayne Memorial be successful in many ways.”

Hoff also talked about the hospital’s successes of the past year, including re-accreditation for its Primary Stroke Center and Trauma Level IV Program. The hospital's cardiac catheterization lab, the Heart & Vascular Center, which opened in 2016, saw its 1,000th patient.

The Second Century Fund was developed to help the hospital continue to be successful by attracting the best medical providers possible to work at Wayne Memorial, particularly in the new tower. "Doing so is no small challenge," Hoff said. "This campaign points us in the right direction."

The Fund's four main goals are to recruit healthcare professionals with greater incentives; to purchase state of the art medical equipment; to implement future medical treatment modalities; and to acquire advanced informational technologies.

The Mistletoe announcement opened the fundraising drive to the community, although donations had been solicited privately months earlier to help assess the success of the campaign. Wayne Memorial Board Chairman Dirk Mumford thanked those who had already committed just over $2 million, or two thirds of the campaign's minimum goal of $3 million.

"Our total includes $600,000 from the Auxiliary, over $600,000 from employees, medical staff and Board Members," Mumford told Mistletoe attendees, "plus more than $800,000 in advanced gifts from individuals and organizations in the community. We can't thank them enough and hope their gifts inspire others to give

Woodloch Family

WAYNE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL'S fundraising campaign, the Second Century Fund, received a generous pledge for $100,000 from the "Woodloch family." That would be the Kiesendahls, who founded, own and operate the popular Woodloch Resort in Pike County. Family members said they were more than happy to support what has been a long and enduring relationship. "The Woodloch family has always appreciated all that Wayne Memorial Hospital does," stated John Kiesendahl, president and CEO of Woodloch Resort. "When our 1,200 staffers need medical attention, this is their main place to go and for our 100,000 annual guests, this is their main place for emergency care. We are always met by the hospital staff with kindness, consideration and capable care that represents the best of Wayne Memorial and the way we like to treat our guests as well."

Wayne County Bar Association

THE WAYNE COUNTY Bar Association made a generous donation of $25,000 to Wayne Memorial Hospital's Second Century Fund.

"This check indicates the very strong support that the Wayne County Bar Association has had for Wayne Memorial over the years," said Ronald Bugaj, Esq., immediate past president of the Bar Association. "We saw what wonderful progress the hospital has made with this worthwhile project for the community, and the Bar Association supports it, supports the community, our hospital and particularly our fellow professionals, the doctors."

Wayne Memorial Joins Rural Health Model

AN INNOVATIVE APPROACH to the way rural hospitals provide care and are paid was officially unveiled in Harrisburg March 5th by the Pennsylvania Department of Health. It's called the Rural Health Model, and Wayne Memorial Hospital is one of only five participating hospitals in the state. Under the Rural Health Model, major payers including four private insurers, plus Medicare and Medicaid, have agreed to pay participating hospitals a fixed amount annually instead of when the service is rendered.

"In addition to providing hospitals with a steady, predictable income and more financial security, the intent is also to help hospitals transform over a six-year period of time to invest more in preventive care with the 'extra money' or savings that should be generated," said Wayne Memorial CEO David Hoff. "Hospitals could use a portion of that stable income to fund health initiatives, such as vaccinations," he suggested, "or work in collaboration with others to address issues like lack of transportation or create programs for patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

"In short, this is a multi-year transformation for Wayne Memorial on helping people stay healthy as well as helping them heal," he continued. "Traditionally we were paid only when people got sick and we helped them get better; now, we're getting paid to keep people healthy. It's turning the glass upside down."

The four participating private insurers—Geisinger, Highmark, UPMC and Gateway—are calculating their payments on historical data for each hospital, but Hoff said payments can be adjusted as needed.

James Pettinato, RN, Wayne Memorial's director of Patient Care Services, said the hospital might initially focus on reducing unnecessary utilization of the Emergency Department, which can be costly for patients, their families and the hospital. "There are several common complaints that drive patients into our ED when they could in fact be seen in an alternate care setting such as a clinic or doctor's office," Pettinato explained. "We may need to do more education or address social determinants of health such as lack of transportation or food insecurity. We may need to re-allocate resources."

Pettinato said the hospital would work in concert with Wayne Memorial Community Health Centers the hospital's clinical affiliate, which employs most of the area's primary care providers and many other community partners. These partnerships will become key components when facing many of the social economic issues related to our patient population.

"It's a very exciting time in healthcare," said Pettinato, "and Wayne Memorial is going to be at the forefront of this change."

Wayne Memorial Health Foundation New Chair

LONGTIME WAYNE MEMORIAL advocate Nancy Turano Propst is now the chairperson of the Wayne Memorial Health Foundation. Propst succeeds Milt Roegner, who will remain on the Foundation Board of Trustees.

“Wayne Memorial Hospital is a strong institution in our area,” said Propst, “providing not only excellent medical care but also more than a thousand jobs. I am honored to lead a team that helps make decisions that further the health system’s mission.”

Propst, who is married to Michael Propst, son of the late Harry Propst, MD, former Wayne Memorial Chief of Staff, joined the Wayne Memorial Health Foundation in 2011. She is a registered dietitian who earned her Bachelor of Science degree from Marywood University. She has worked as a dietitian at Wayne Memorial Hospital, Maternal and Family Health Services and several skilled nursing facilities. An active volunteer, Nancy regularly gives her time to the 4H Club, Boy and Girl Scouts of America and St. John the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church. A resident of Beach Lake, Nancy and her husband have five children and two grandchildren.

The Foundation is primarily tasked with fundraising and the management of funds which support and assist non-profit organizations engaged in activities related to the promotion of health or the provision of hospital or healthcare services. Other responsibilities include overseeing the for-profit subsidiary, Wayne Health Services, as well as administering grants to non-profit, health-focused organizations.

Leaf Added to Giving Tree

FAMILY MEMBERS OF the late Joseph Lizzio and the late Richard Bionda gather in front of Wayne Memorial Health Foundation’s Giving Tree following the placement of a leaf donated by Madlyn and Frank Borelli honoring their loved ones. The three families were long-time friends and neighbors. The Giving Tree, located in Wayne Memorial Hospital’s lobby, commemorates special life events as well as those who have passed.

Grant Applications Available in April

DURING 2018, WAYNE

Memorial Health Foundation (WMHF) awarded a total of $17,500 in community grant funds to 10 local non-profit groups. Recipients ranged from volunteer fire departments to organizations offering parenting skills training for high-risk families. Applications for 2019 grants will be available the first week of April with a due date for completion no later than June 30, 2019.

Non-profit groups providing health-related programs or services in Wayne or Pike Counties, or Carbondale or Forest City areas in need of support funding may qualify for a Community Grant from WMHF. Grants are geared towards organizations focused on injury and disease prevention and treatment and the promotion of good health and wellbeing for residents in the Wayne Memorial Health System service area.

Application forms and complete grant guidelines may be obtained by either visiting Wayne Memorial Hospital’s webpage at wmh.org or contacting Jack Dennis, executive director, Wayne Memorial Health Foundation by calling (570) 251-6533 or emailing dennis@wmh.org.

Community Input Sought for 2019 Health Needs Assessment

INDIVIDUALS FROM HOSPITAL, government, local school districts, civic and human service agencies acting as an Advisory Committee began their task of guiding the implementation of Wayne Memorial's 2019 Community Health Needs Assessment (CHNA) in early February.

This will be the fourth such assessment completed by Wayne Memorial with the assistance of HMS Associates who facilitate the process, analyze and report results. Collaboration with community partners ensures survey components will be geographically appropriate in identifying pressing health and societal needs throughout Wayne Memorial's service area.

The process includes an on-line survey and in-person interviews, as well as Advisory Committee input and intensive supporting data gathering and analysis. The finished study is required every three years to the Internal Revenue Service, as it is for all non-profit US hospitals. Beyond this fundamental requirement, Wayne Memorial Hospital has partnered with community organizations, local governments and state agencies for decades in identifying community health-related needs for strategic planning purposes and identifying initiatives, activities and implementation strategies.

Once completed, study results will be available on www.wmh.org, as well as some participating organizations' websites near the end of this summer.

New Human Resources Director for Wayne Memorial

BETHANY FINE, WHO had been serving as the Human Resources (HR) Manager of Wayne Memorial Community Health Centers (WMCHC), clinical affiliate of Wayne Memorial Health System, took on the role of Human Resources Director of Wayne Memorial Hospital/Health System in October of 2018.

"Bethany came to us with many years of managerial experience, including more than two years with our community health centers," said Hoff. "She is familiar with our services and, most importantly, with the many complexities of managing personnel issues such as hiring procedures and benefits packages."

Prior to WMCHC, Fine worked in a similar position at Devereux Pocono Programs and Services in Newfoundland. During her 12 years with Devereux, she held various positions including Human Resources Director and Director of Operations. Fine received a Bachelor of Arts in Communication Studies with a concentration in Human Resources Management from Bloomsburg University.

Fine expressed enthusiasm not only for her chosen career, but also for advancement with Wayne Memorial, "I view HR as a customer service department. Our customers in HR are our employees. And I am delighted to have joined a talented group of HR professionals at Wayne Memorial Hospital to serve our employees so that they can, in turn, provide the best service to our patients."

Wayne Memorial Hospital Gets an “A” for Patient Safety

WAYNE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL was one of only 50 hospitals in Pennsylvania to receive an “A” grade in the Fall 2018 Patient Safety Survey from the Leapfrog group, a non-profit patient safety watchdog organization. The designation recognizes Wayne Memorial’s efforts in protecting patients from harm and meeting the highest safety standards in the United States.

The Leapfrog Group is a national organization committed to improving health-care quality and safety for consumers and purchasers. The Safety Grade assigns an A, B, C, D or F grade to hospitals across the country based on their performance in preventing medical errors, infections and other harms among patients in their care.

“Patient safety is and has always been a top concern for us at Wayne Memorial,” said CEO David Hoff. “We have a Patient Safety Committee that meets regularly, collects data and routinely checks up on follow-through. The committee has a broad scope. Members review everything from clinical data to maintenance status on equipment such as fire extinguishers and overhead sprinklers. We are very proud of our grade from Leapfrog.”

Developed under the guidance of a National Expert Panel, the Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade uses 28 measures of publicly available hospital safety data to assign grades to more than 2,600 U.S. hospitals twice per year. The Hospital Safety Grade’s methodology is peer-reviewed and fully transparent, and the results are free to the public.

“Leapfrog’s Hospital Safety Grades recognize hospitals like Wayne Memorial that focus on advancing patient safety. This ranking provides an important resource for patients, and a benchmark for hospitals, to determine how care at one hospital compares to others in a region,” said Leah Binder, president and CEO of The Leapfrog Group.
